Editor's Note - Charmaine

It's the last Issue of 2020. I'm grateful that this year came to an end.
We all know that this was not a very good year.
We are still straggling to recover from the Covid -19. I personally think the rumple effect of the Covid-19 is still going to be with us for a while.

I just hope and pray that next year will be kind and generous to us. We should take one day at a time.

Top Vibe Kids Magazine will close over the festive season from 11 - 31 of December. But we will be active on our social media platforms.

Please join us on Facebook and Instagram where we will continue to have competitions and fun things to do.
Share your holiday pictures with us, you might just be lucky and win while on holiday.

We at Top Vibe Kids Magazine would like to wish all our advertisers, readers a blessed Christmas may you be spoiled not only with gifs but with love and kindness.

Christmas is a time for giving.
Rich out and give to those who do not have.
Invite friends to help you, each family can make a dish of food. Arrange to take it to shelter close to you.

Then you did you part of love and care or make a plate of food and give it to somebody who stand at a traffic light and have no food.

God Bless you, today and every day
Love Charmaine.

5 Safe Ways to Celebrate Christmas this year...

This Christmas, it may be hard not to feel a little Grinchy. But before you say, "Bah, humbug," and try to fast forward into the new year, look for ways to find some fun this holiday season.
The corona virus pandemic may mean your Christmas won't look exactly the same as it usually does, but you can get creative and find some new ways to celebrate and some of your ideas may be so good you'll make some new traditions along the way.

Here's how to make your Christmas special, even if concerns about COVID-19 mean you'll have to celebrate the holidays away from your friends and family.

1. Prioritize the traditions that matter most to you
"Think about what is the essence of the holiday for you, so you can try to preserve it," says happiness expert Gretchen Rubin, author of Happier at Home. "Even if you're not doing everything you used to, you can set up the holiday decorations, if that's really important, or make the special foods you love."

2.Do your gift shopping and shipping early.
Since more people will be shopping online to avoid the stores, shipping companies will be inundated so you'll want to shop and send gifts early to make sure they arrive right on time. (Check the USPS holiday shipping deadlines to make sure you're on track.)

3. Trim a tree outdoors
Since you might be entertaining outdoors more than you usually do this time of year, this is the year to go overboard with decking out your deck or patio and adorning an outdoor-friendly tree (or even a live Christmas tree in a planter) with LED lights and shatterproof ornaments is the way to go. (Tip: Use twist ties or florist's wire to secure the ornaments to the tree, so they'll stay put even in a stiff wind.)

Maybe Santa could even leave some of the best outdoorsy Christmas gifts of the year, such as snowshoes, skis, or sleds, at the outdoor tree, too.

4.Make special memories
Yeah, you and your household members may be a little tired of each other right now, but think of fun ways to help set the holiday season apart. Create a little advent calendar with festive activities for each day, rather than a treat. Your Christmas activities don't have to be elaborate it could just be drinking hot cocoa together wearing Santa hats or watching one of the best Christmas movies on Netflix but it'll help make the season brighter.

5.Find ways to make the most of your time with loved ones
To keep everyone as safe as possible, your best bet is following CDC recommendations and avoiding indoor get-togethers. (An outbreak of COVID is the Christmas gift that no one wished for.) And that means if you live in the northern part of the country, your time together will probably need to be briefer (and chillier) than you'd probably like. Zoom fatigue is real, though: If you can, make events in-person and outdoors, even if it means a quick chat while everyone's bundled up.

When gathering in person outdoors, consider keeping celebrations to the daytime hours, when it might be a little bit warmer and more comfortable to spend time outside. Look for outdoor activities that can be socially distanced and keep you active, like sledding or snow-fort making. And don't forget to serve hot foods and drinks to help keep everyone toast.
Do your Secret Santa or white elephant gift exchange around an outdoor picnic table or fire pit; for ugly sweater competitions, straightedges layering options so you can show off your light-up sweater and stay warm at the same time.

6.Spread some joy
If 2020 has taught us anything, it's how much the people in our lives mean to us, so go ahead and spread some happiness where you can. Write down how much the people you love mean to you and send it out to them. Make Christmas cookies and leave some with your friends and neighbors or drop off pizza or other treats at a local nursing home, hospital, or fire department to brighten the lives of the people there.

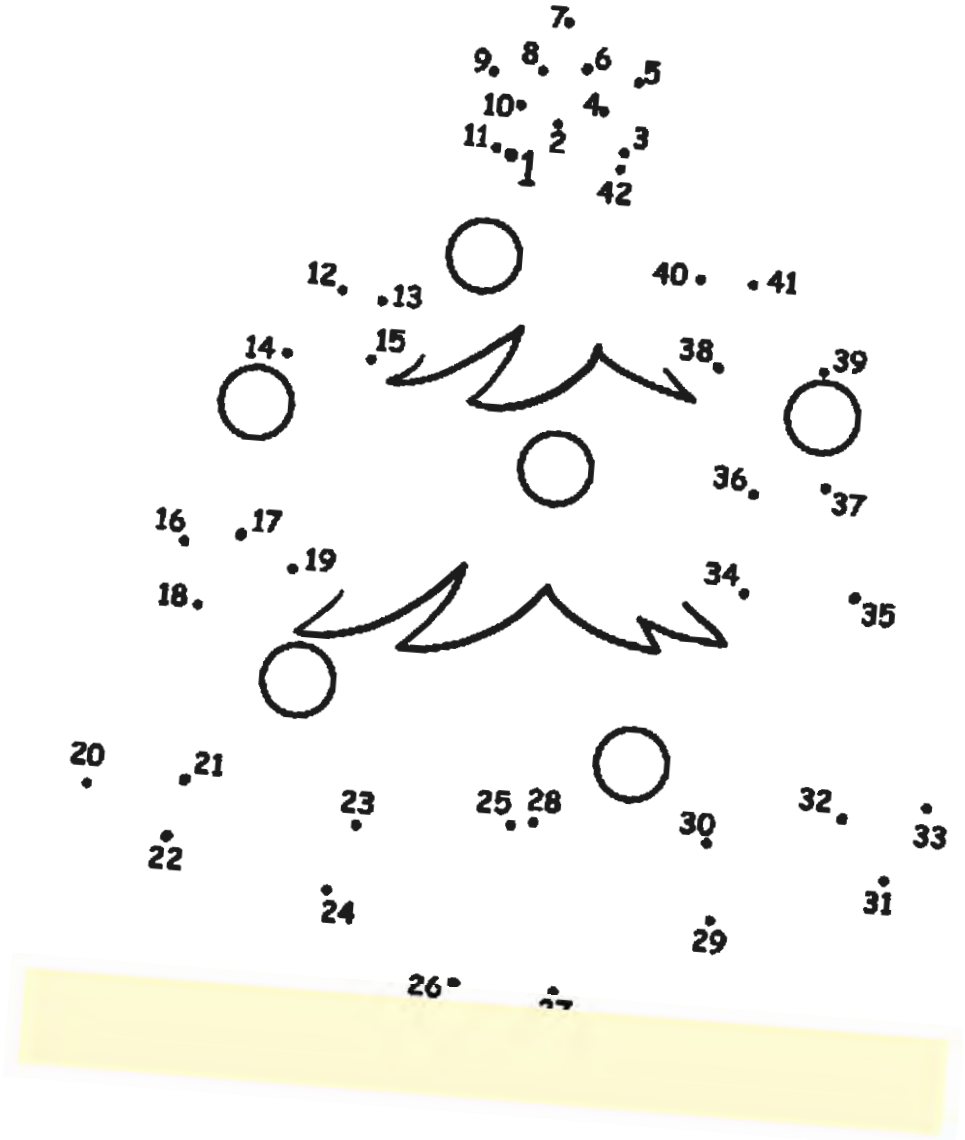

7.Remember that what's different may make this holiday more special
You may not remember exactly what

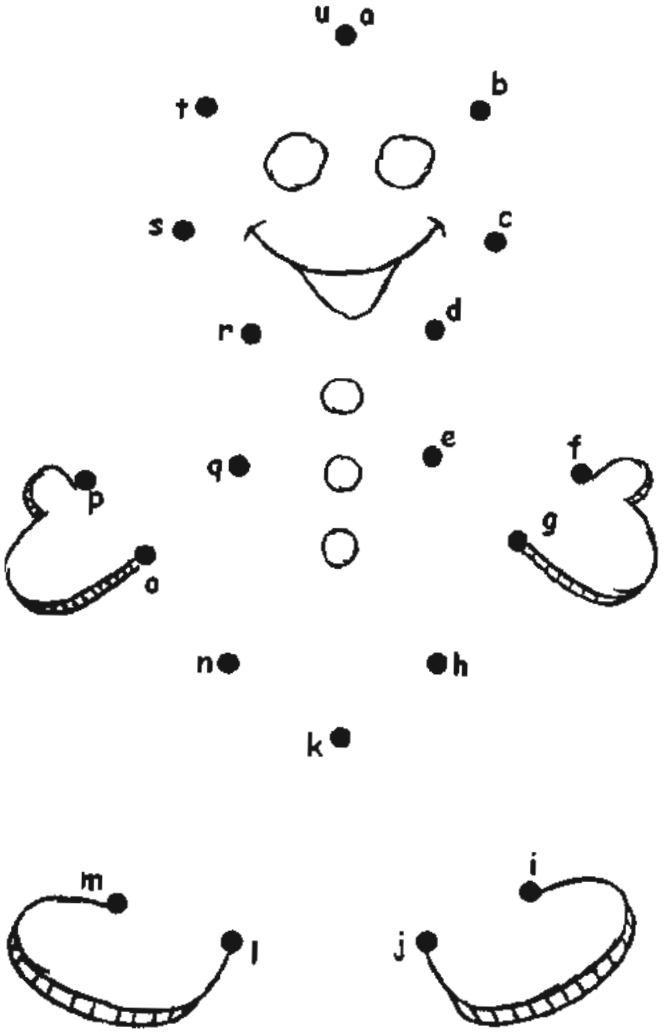

7. Remember that what's different may make this holiday more special
You may not remember exactly what happened at the holidays from year to year, but when something this different happens, it'll stick out. "Things that go wrong often make the best memories," Rubin says. "This exceptional holiday season will probably be more memorable because it's so different. We just have to find a way to make the most of it."
